
It is said that the greatest power in the universe is within you and all you need to do to release this supernatural force is simply speak. And yet, many people struggle with putting their thoughts into words and it seems like they'll never be able to put together a coherent sentence or even paragraph. They don't know where to start or how much time it will take them to produce something they can feel proud of. It's a good thing that this article will be showing you how to write in just five steps. Step 1: People are different, so are their ways of thinking. Apart from the fact that each individual has unique gifts and abilities, the way they process the world is unique as well, which means that everyone gets inspired by different things. You can get inspiration for your writing from many places. It can be a movie scene or dialogue, an experience you had or a person you met. The important thing is to keep your writing journal with you at all times, because something could inspire you to write at any given moment. Step 2: The moment you feel that inspiration, it's time to write. You don't need to wait until you're sitting in front of the computer. All you need is a small journal and a pen and you can start writing your thoughts as soon as they pop up. It doesn't matter if you have an idea of what to write about or not – the most important thing is that words start flowing from your mind onto a paper. Remember, a writer is an explorer who ventures into new worlds of imagination every time they put their fingers on a keyboard. Step 3: When you have some free time, take out your writing journal and read through what you've written over the last few days or weeks. This way you'll have a better idea of what subject interested you the most and will be able to write more about it. Step 4: After a while, your writing journal will become a treasure trove of material for your future stories. You can also see how different ideas evolved and were born from a few words you wrote in the beginning. At this point, it is important to realize that not all thoughts are created equal, so try not to spend too much time on certain ideas and concentrate on more finished products instead. Step 5: Now that you know how to write, it's time to find your voice. There is no one way of writing, but there are some unspoken rules of composition that all writers must follow. One of them is using the best words you can possibly find to create the best image for your readers. It also helps if you can use words with multiple meanings so you'll be able to choose the one that works the best in the context you're writing about. Still, remember that it is not enough just to choose words – you need to know how they work together and what thoughts they evoke.
